Subword Relations

- German compounds are represented by one tree made in UD. Parallel English compounds are typically written as multiple words => multiple nodes connected by compound relations. Moreover, other annotation may pertain just to one part of a compound. We may want to annotate the MWE Rolle spielen "to play a role" in the compound Maßnahme spielen "to play the main role".
- Turkish words may combine several derivational and inflectional steps. Traditional analysis would break them up to inflection groups but in UD they are mostly kept together and the internal structure is not visible.
- Chukchi transitive verbs may incorporate their objects and switch to intransitive inflection.
- Fieldworkers may prefer morpheme-based analysis when documenting a language; a UD example is the treebank of Biga.
